Accordingly, as was indicated, the discourse begins with comprehension and conceptualization. This is followed by the identification and definition of the problem. The next step is the identification of causes and relationships. This is followed by the development of a strategy or plan. The final step is the implementation of the strategy or plan. This is followed by the evaluation of the results. The process is then repeated as needed.

In summary, the principal-agent theory in public administration is a theoretical framework that is used to analyze the relationship between the principal and the agent. The principal is the person who hires the agent to perform a particular task. The agent is the person who is hired to perform the task. The principal-agent theory in public administration is used to analyze the relationship between the principal and the agent in various contexts, such as the relationship between the government and the public, the relationship between the employer and the employee, and the relationship between the owner and the manager. The principal-agent theory in public administration is a useful tool for understanding the relationship between the principal and the agent.

The principal-agent theory in public administration is a useful tool for understanding the relationship between the principal and the agent. The principal-agent theory in public administration is a theoretical framework that is used to analyze the relationship between the principal and the agent. The principal is the person who hires the agent to perform a particular task. The agent is the person who is hired to perform the task. The principal-agent theory in public administration is used to analyze the relationship between the principal and the agent in various contexts, such as the relationship between the government and the public, the relationship between the employer and the employee, and the relationship between the owner and the manager. The principal-agent theory in public administration is a useful tool for understanding the relationship between the principal and the agent.

The principal-agent theory in public administration is a useful tool for understanding the relationship between the principal and the agent. The principal-agent theory in public administration is a theoretical framework that is used to analyze the relationship between the principal and the agent. The principal is the person who hires the agent to perform a particular task. The agent is the person who is hired to perform the task. The principal-agent theory in public administration is used to analyze the relationship between the principal and the agent in various contexts, such as the relationship between the government and the public, the relationship between the employer and the employee, and the relationship between the owner and the manager. The principal-agent theory in public administration is a useful tool for understanding the relationship between the principal and the agent.